

Michigan Instruction Exchange 2014

Teaching information literacy skills to chemistry students can be quite different from providing library instruction to history majors. The challenges and benefits of discipline-specific library instruction forms the theme of this year's Michigan Instruction Exchange (MIX).

Join the Grand Valley State University Libraries Research and Instruction faculty at the beautiful, new Mary Idema Pew Library Learning and Information Commons for a day of conversation and idea exchange with academic instruction librarians from around the state.

The one-day conference will begin with a networking breakfast and include:

- Discipline-specific sessions focusing on individual liaison areas
- Active learning ideas for putting information literacy theory into practice
- Round table discussions, exploring topics in depth
- Lunch-time table talks
- Panel discussion featuring faculty from a variety of disciplines

When: Friday, August 8, 2014, 9:00 am - 4:00 pm

Where: Mary Idema Pew Library,
Grand Valley State University, Allendale, Michigan
